

 <https://youtu.be/QIgzlbiWjZA>

Joe Martucci

Communicating the Weather

Joe is the Meteorologist for The Press of Atlantic City, covering Southeastern New Jersey, and is re-defining the role of a Broadcast Meteorologist for the 21st Century. Through video, digital and social media, as well as traditional print, Joe delivers the forecast to the residents and visitors of the region daily. Before his time at The Press, Joe worked at WeatherWorks, a consulting firm in Hackettstown, New Jersey. A popular destination for Rutgers grads, Joe forecasted for clients from Wawa to NASA and the Baltimore Ravens. Joe also was a key contributor to the radio, sales and social media departments. Joe, born and raised in Union, New Jersey, graduated from Rutgers in 2013.

“You had all the opportunity of a big college environment within the small confines of the Meteorology Program. Class sizes are small, professors know your name, but you also get the latest and greatest technology.”